

From your IIS Board of Trustees

Dear IIS Members,

The Board of Trustees (BoT) plans to conduct its next meeting, by teleconference, during the week of November 12. Our previous meetings, held before and around the Central European Division annual meeting last June, were very productive and resulted in a number of key decisions and advancement of several other projects. The major outputs from the June meetings were summarized in the most recent IIS Newsletter.

We encourage all IIS members to take an interest in business meetings of the Society, including the BoT meetings. We are making a modest start in this direction by publicizing the agenda for the coming BoT teleconference meeting, and asking for contributions of comments, ideas, and suggestions for the agenda topics, and as well to suggest other topics which you think the Board should address.

We realize that, as we have not provided any background to the agenda items listed here, many of you may feel unable to contribute in an informed way. We intend in the future to communicate more often, in more detail, and in a more timely manner than in the past, to let the membership know what the Board is considering and doing, and to stimulate more input from across the IIS. This we hope will enliven and improve the Society in the future.

Summary Agenda for BoT Meeting, Week of November 12, 2001

1. Current fiscal status of the Society - review of budgets, spending, financial control processes, etc
2. IIS Symposium Boston June 2003 - status report of budget and actions
